Reduction in infection, which is the ability of a vaccine to prevent exposed individuals becoming infected.

Reduction in severity of resultant clinical disease, which is the ability of vaccine to reduce severity of disease if people still acquire infection.

Reduction in infectivity, which is the ability of vaccine to reduce the spread of infection to others.