FinTech – Financial Innovation Microcredential 10 Week Online Programme

Why do this Course?

The rapid development of Financial Technologies (FinTech) are transforming the future of finance. Advances in information and communications technologies are transforming how businesses interact with their customers.

Professionals working in this field increasingly need to understand emerging technologies impacting financial services. In response to this need, DCU Business School has developed a microcredential delivered online through our partnership with the Future Learn online education platform.

Who this Course is For

This microcredential, worth 5 ECTS, explores the interaction of finance and technology and its impact on the financial services industry. The main objectives of this course are to:

- deepen your knowledge of the FinTech landscape
- encourage you to think critically across a range of financial and technology contexts, and
- identify the challenges and complex issues pertaining to this emerging and evolving space.

This course will appeal to the following professionals:

- Finance professionals seeking to upskill in the area of FinTech and financial innovation.
- Technology professionals seeking to appraise how new technologies are being adopted and applied in the financial services industry.

- Business, management, and finance graduates seeking to develop knowledge and expertise in respect of important concepts and issues pertaining to the emergence of FinTech.
