

Inositol is an essential nutrient in early life and concentrations are higher in breastmilk from mothers delivering preterm

LOE 2

Trials conducted 20-30 years ago suggested possible benefit from supplementation in preterm infants, but these have not been confirmed in more recent RCTs, and there may be a risk of higher mortality in infants receiving supplements

LOE 2